

Fostering & sustaining UK multidisciplinary, family-focused care across the life-course: A White Rose Collaboration

Project aim:

To establish a research development group focusing on family health & social-care research across the life-course that combines research/ psychology/ nursing/ social care expertise in long-term conditions across the Universities of Leeds, York & Sheffield

Objectives:

- Systematic review of UK family nursing
- Harness existing links with international family experts
- Establish patient & public involvement group
- Set objectives for future collaborative grant application/s around support strategies for long-term conditions

Project development event - April 2016

Consumer advisory group & contributions to the project

Identifying aims & objectives of systematic review, search terms & timetable for systematic review

Delivery of expert workshop - November 2016

Interim report - November 2016

Final report - February 2017

Outline aims & objectives for future grant application

Systematic review:

working with information scientists to develop a data base of studies that have focused on family nursing

Project Lead: Professor Veronica Swallow, School of Healthcare, University of Leeds

v.swallow@leeds.ac.uk

Project Coordinator: Dr Joanna Smith, School of Healthcare, University of Leeds

j.e.smith1@leeds.ac.uk